A trip to Beijing

intro

Beijing is the capital city of China.

I always think it is a very noisy city.

I think it is not as good as home

So when my mom said we go to Beijing I really want to stay home, because I know it better, and Beijing is different home.

conclusion

On this trip, I know that a different place had a different kind of beautiful. It may be a lot different from home. But you need to go there and feel the different, and some times

you will like that city

Suggestions

- I always thought it wasn't as nice as my hometown. (Wording is clearer)
- We had to go to...
- I really wanted to stay home
- I knew it was better then traveling to ...
- During this trip I learned that a different place has different kinds of benefits.
- If you take a chance on a new place, you may find that you like it. Consider Different is not always a bad thing! This would leave your reader with a final thought related to your text.
- Remember past tense should be use for stories which have already taken place

Field days

Every student should attend field days at school, because it is good exercise, there is no homework and everyone gets a play.

First of all field days is ~~X~~ good exercise. There are a lot of fun games to play, like football, kickball and relay race.

the teachers will help us and play with us too. Secondly, the teachers will give us a lot of treats, like sweet little candies, little cookies, and small pieces of bread. The best part about field together, and it brings the whole school together. Everyone should try this fun exercise.

This is a wonderful paragraph speaking about the event you like attending at school. You provide solid reasons why others should attend and share supporting details which flow well. Topics are organized with like topics. You might consider adding an event you think highlights or is most important on the day to enhance the work. But overall, well done!
